FOREWORD

Those who are old enough to have memories of the happenings of fifty years ago will doubtless think, as they look at the water colors in the galleries of the Fine Arts Building, of the first exhibitions held by the American Water Color Society in Twenty-third Street. They will remember the eager enthusiasm of the public who waited in crowds outside anxious to be the first to enter when the doors opened, and fearful lest, when they did get in, there might be no unsold pictures left for them to purchase. "Galt, Galt" they would cry on catching a glimpse of the familiar figure of the famous picture salesman, "Be sure and give me first pick." In those days the salesman made enough out of his commissions to take a trip to Europe, and the American Water Color Society was a flourishing institution which could afford to entertain its members and exhibitors in a style not yet forgotten.

The annual smoker was awaited with eager anticipation by many a hungry artist whose picture had been accepted. Imagine the thrill the youngster got who ate and possibly smoked for the first time with men like William Chase, Alexander Wyant, or Hopkinson Smith. The refreshments are still talked of—"Golly, what eats! Oyster-patties, chicken salad and cigars any amount. Why some fellows ate enough for a month."

There is an amusing story told of an artist of talent who was invited to contribute a picture to the annual exhibition, but who not being ready sent in an empty frame accompanied by a note to say the picture would follow.

The day before the opening he was warned that the committee could wait no longer. The artist had only been able to paint the sky, but perceiving that the white foreground looked like snow, he stuck in a few crows, and sent the picture in to join its frame. The snow scene was a great success and was sold immediately, and orders followed for more. The demand lasted until a troublesome young art student pointed out that the snow was only white paper, without even a touch of paint.

Mrs. Pimerton recalls when the New York Water Color Club came into being. Mrs. Julia Baker, Charles Warren Eaton, and Henry B. Snell thought it a good idea to have a water color exhibition during the Fall, and the President of the American Water Color Society thought it undesirable. Therefore a few members of the society got together in 1890, and formed the New York Water Color Club, of which Mr. Snell was Corresponding Secretary, and Mr. Childe Hassam first President.

The first exhibition was given in November of that year in the American Art Galleries.

Mrs. Pimerton was among the first patrons, and still treasures with pride what is perhaps the only extant copy of the catalogue, a thin little leaflet containing such well-known names as Rhoda Holmes Nichols, Mrs. E. N. Scott, Ben Foster, etc.

This year it was decided to give one joint exhibition of the New York Water Color Club and American Water Color Society, and in a spirit of friendly co-operation the two boards worked together, each yielding a few points in deference to the time honored customs of the other, with the result now presented to the public.

Mrs. Pimerton is rejoiced at the combined exhibition and the revival of interest in water color painting. The little collection she possesses is her pride and joy, and she still loves her little snow scene 'in spite of the omniscient art student. She, by the way, was once invited to pass a few days with some intensely modern and up-to-date young people. On awaking in the morning her eyes fell upon one of the latest Cubistic productions. She thought at first that she had lost her mind, but on finding it was really a painting she hastily packed her trunk and hurried back to the companionship of her much loved water colors of long ago.

Let us hope that you too fifty years hence, when art has developed some new fashion, will still cherish a love for the water color you brought home from this exhibition.

ALPHAËUS P. COLE,
Secretary, Exhibition Committee.

LE MESURIER ARTISTS' COLORS

American made colors that positively produce the same tints as the best English tube paint. Colors that are guaranteed to possess every desirable feature of those of domestic or foreign make and to excel them in many essential qualities, such as impalpable fineness, freedom from lint, grit and other aggravating substances. Colors that are invariably uniform in strength and shade.

*All colors may be had in double,
quadruple and
octuple tubes.*
